

Brahms-esque:

Johannes Brahms – this is what we're after!

Modest Mussorgsky - not quite as full-blooded, but extra points for looking like a pirate

Arnold Schoenberg wasn't bearded himself, but helpfully painted exactly what we're looking for

Daniel Cottier – were he and Brahms distant cousins?!

Maurice Ravel - a little generous, perhaps, but the bowler hat seals his spot

Terry Riley – this is how it's done!

Doesn't make the cut:

Johannes Brahms - in his early years, still with a bit of work to do...

Claude Debussy – far too well groomed, sorry

Giacomo Puccini – close, but no cigar

Bill Sweeney - a little more time, and Bill would make it

Pyotr Ilych Tchaikovsky – too much neck on display, sorry!

Jacques Offenbach - mutton chops and a pince-nez...stylish, but no chin-wig.

Eddie McGuire - Eddie was lucky not to receive a lifetime ban for this effort!

- The Artistic Director's decision is final
- No fakery
- Free entry subject to availability